Travel Notes:

- If you are flying put your dance clothes/costumes in your carry on so they make it to Vegas.
- Come cheer on our soloists, details below!

What to wear:

- Please remember every time you are outside a ballroom you need to have your studio sweats overtop of your dance clothes
- Any dance clothes, something unique and appropriate for class NOT YOUR TEAM OUTFIT
- Your hair MUST be pulled away from your face the entire weekend. You will be dancing for several hours and I don't want the kids messing with hair

Have your backpack with:

- All of your dance shoes and socks (you never know what you might want, you will be on carpet). Ballet shoes, gore boots, socks, tennis shoes, tap shoes
- Water bottle and Nutritious snacks
- $ for food, maybe a little extra for souvenirs.
- Safety pins for your audition number
- Extra masks
- Lunch or bring them lunch. We will plan to eat as a team in the hallway.

- The day your dancer is scheduled for auditions please make sure your dancer has her lunch with her. They will have a short time to eat following auditions.

Talking points for parents and tips for classes:

- Convention is a big deal with lots of dancing! Students are expected to listen and be on their best behavior the entire convention. If a student is goofing off, doing cartwheels in the back of the room, or just checked out due to exhaustion, they will be given one warning from a teacher. If we notice poor behavior again, we will call a parent to have them picked up.
- No cartwheels or tricks during class! This is poor etiquette and is disrespectful to the choreographer!
- Dancers need to stay in their classes at ALL times, please talk to our dancer about not going to their bag during classes, staying in the classroom at all times and using the restroom between classes
- Try to stand in the front of the room so that the choreographer will more likely notice you. Treat your classes as if they were auditions. (Actually, it is an audition because you are always in the audition process for scholarships)
- Force yourself to pay close attention to the choreographer and what they are saying and doing. By watching and listening carefully, you are more likely to pick up the details in the choreography and better technique. These little details are what will set you apart from the rest of the group.
- Come dressed appropriately for class
- Try not to watch the dancers around you, but instead focus on yourself and the way that you are dancing. Try to know the steps before your group is called up to perform. If you do happen to forget, watch your fellow dancers and mimic the steps until you find your place in the routine, and try to pick it back up.
- Turn your cell phone off!!
- NO talking during classes. It really bugs the teachers and it can be very distracting to the dancers that are actually trying to learn something. If you must talk, wait until the time is appropriate (i.e. not when you are learning a piece) and then talk in a whisper-voice.
- There will be a lot of people in the room and you will more than likely be crowded. So if you get hit or kicked, try not to take it personally. If you do end up slapping somebody, wait until the routine is over and then go up to the person and apologize.
- Try your hardest and try not to get frustrated when you mess up. You will not likely come out of a convention with perfect technique and ten times better than when you went in, but hopefully you learned a thing or two and gained some experience.
- Expect to work hard and sweat a lot.
